Course Description

This course examines how major political events of the last century shaped women's lives. Using gender as a lens to examine the twentieth century, we will look at a variety of issues including women and work, feminist movements, and women and Islam. The texts for the course are a mixture of literature, history and social science. This class will primarily be discussion oriented and I expect students to participate on a regular basis. The course also allows students to pursue topics of particular interest through the final paper.

Course Requirements

The course requirements and grade distribution for the course are as follows:

15% - First short essay (3-4 pages)	Due to writing tutor February 11th Due to professor February 21st
20% - Second short essay (4-5 pages)	Due to writing tutor March 4th Due to professor March 28th
15% - Draft of final paper (10 pages)	Due to writing tutor and professor April 15th
30% - Final paper (10 pages)	Due to professor May 13th
5% - Presentation on final paper
15% - Participation

The participation grade consists of both in-class contributions to the discussion and a variety of small assignments throughout the course. I will keep track of how often each person speaks in class. This class requires you to write two shorter essays and one longer, final paper. The short essay assignments will be handed out 7 – 10 days prior to the due date and I will choose the topics. You will select the topic for your final paper, subject to my approval. A draft of this paper is due April 15th and the final version is due May 13th. We will spend the last two weeks of class hearing presentations from everyone on their research papers. I will pass out more information on both the presentations and the research paper later in the semester.

Obtaining Course Readings

The list of readings (see below) notes where each text can be obtained. I will also place hard copies of all readings on reserve at Olin. Many of the readings will also be available through electronic reserve.

Course Policies

Students are required to complete all readings and attend each class period prepared to talk about the readings. I expect you to have finished the entire set of readings listed for a particular week by the Monday class meeting unless otherwise specified the week before. All assignments are due at 4pm in the Government Department office in the Public Affairs Center. Extensions and incompletes will not be granted under any circumstances other than significant and verifiable personal emergencies (e.g., serious illness, death in family). Late work will be penalized one full grade per day.

All work that you submit must be your own. You must cite all sources used in completing the assignments using a standard form of citation. If you are unsure how to use proper citation form, please ask me or the writing tutor. Failure to use proper citation is plagiarism. You must adhere to all aspects of the honor code. Please write on each assignment: “No aid. No violation.” Please sign your name next to that statement.
